

Mikado's Great Naval Fighter Gives Graphic Story of Victory in Laconic Dispatches from Scene of Battle---Rojestvensky Is Wounded and a Prisoner.

Japan now believes that Russia will be compelled to sue for peace within a short while.

Dispatches just received here from Korea declare that the Japanese torpedo attack was carried on by moonlight and add:

"They completely encircled the Russians, swarming like hornets, and the attack proved successful. Sunday morning a Russian battleship and a cruiser were captured and another cruiser was sunk. Some of the Russian warships retired southwards. The fighting was on a grand scale. The Varoonid and Kamchatka soon sank. The Russians were then thrown into disorder. The ships failed to answer the Admiral's signals and a complete lack of united effort prevailed.

"By 4 p. m. Rojstvensky was completely defeated, but pursuit and severe fighting continued. The Japanese captured a battleship which was damaged severely, having been swept clean by shell fire, and eventually she sank, but all her crew were made prisoners.

TOKIO, May 31.—Modestly, clearly and in simple language the victorious Admiral Togo gives a graphic picture of the overwhelming disaster he has inflicted on the Russian navy in his brief official reports to his government. In the order in which they were received at Tokio they are as follows:

First Report, May 27:

Our combined fleet is now going into action. The weather is clear, but the sea is rough.

Second Report, May 27:

To-day near Okinoshima (southeast of Tsushima) we attacked the enemy's squadron, causing it heavy damage. At least four Russian ships were sunk and others were heavily damaged. Our damage is slight. Our destroyer and torpedo boat flotilla commenced an attack after sunset.

Third Report. May 29:

The main strength of our combined fleet continued the attack since the 27th, and on the 28th, near Liancourt Rocks, encountered the enemy, consisting of the Nicholai I, OreI (battleships), Seniavin, Apraxine and the Izumrud (cruisers). We attacked. The Izumrud left the line of battle, and all the others soon surrendered. We suffered no damage. The prisoners taken state that the Russian ships sunk in the battle on the 27th were the Borodino, Alexander III. (battleships), Jemtyugh (protected cruiser), and three others. The prisoners taken include Rear Admiral Nebogatoff and 2,000 other Russians.

Fourth Report, May 30:

The main force of our combined fleet, upon accepting surrender of the remaining Russian main force near Liancourt Rocks, on the afternoon of May 28, as already reported, stopped pursuit, and while engaged in the disposition of surrendered ships found, in the southwestern direction, the Admiral Ushakoff, a coast defense ship. Thereupon Iwato and Yakumo were immediately dispatched in pursuit and invited her to surrender, but she refused and was sunk at 6 p. m. Her crew of over 300 men were rescued.

Cruiser Dimitri Donskoi was also found in the northeastern direction at 5 p. m., and was immediately overtaken and fired on vigorously by the fourth division and second destroyer flotilla. She was attacked that night by the second destroyer flotilla and the next morning was found around the southwestern shore of Uliung Island, off Korean coast.

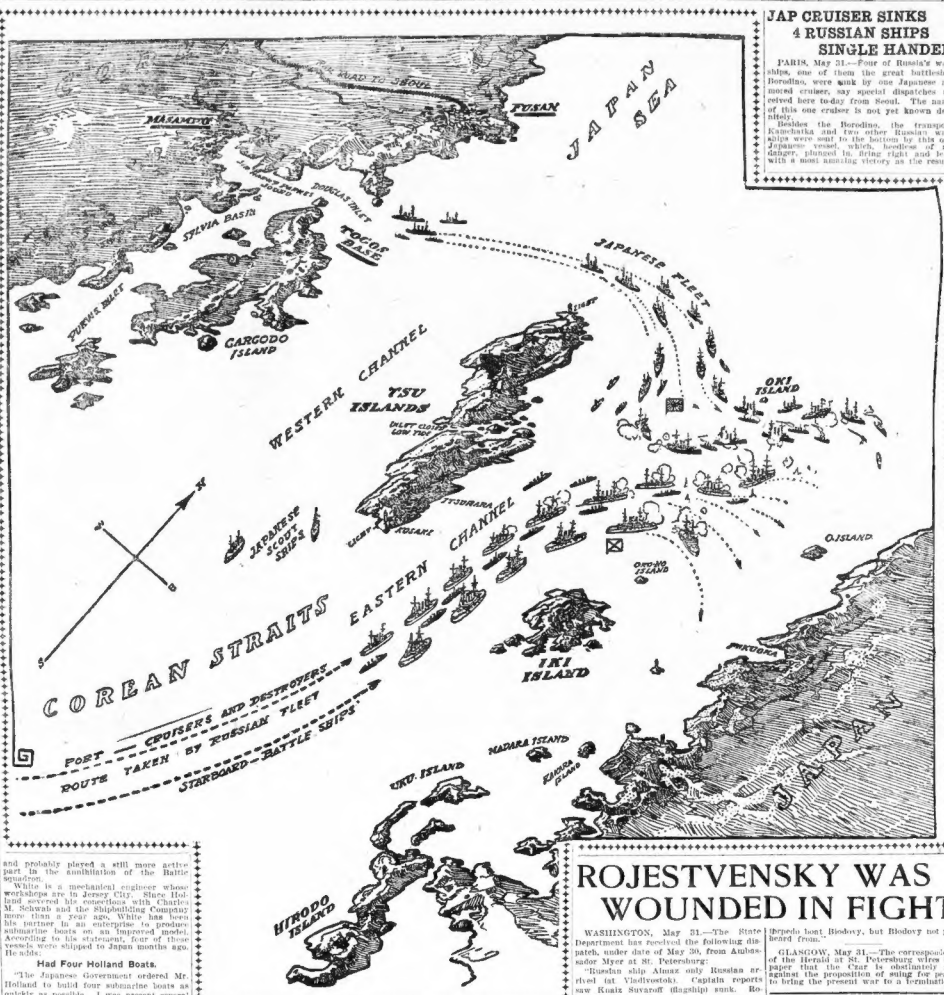

Our destroyer Suzunami captured, toward the evening of May 27, in the South of Uliung Island, the Russian destroyer Rodoy, who was here found with Admiral Rojestvensky and another Admiral, both severely wounded, together with eighty Russians, including staff officers from the flagship Prince Suvorov (Kuznetsov), which was sunk at 5:20 p. m. on May 27. They were

TAKAHIRA FORETOLD USE OF SUBMARINES

By Boston American Leased Wire.
NEW YORK, May 31.—George White of No. 22 81, Nicholas avenue, this city, believes that Yankee genius and engineering skill were instrumental in the Russian naval defeat. He contends that submarine boats, designed by John P. Holland and built under his supervision in Jersey City and Newark, undoubtedly sent the armored cruiser Admiral Nakhimoff to the botto-

PARIS, May 31.—Four of Russia's war ships, one of them the great battleship Borodino, were sunk by one Japanese armored cruiser, say special dispatches received here today from Seoul. The name of this one cruiser is not yet known definitely.

Besides the Borodino, the transport Kamechatka and two other Russian war ships were sent to the bottom by this one Japanese ship, which, besides of its own crew, plucked a number of sailors with a most stunning victory as the result

HOW THE GREAT BATTLE STARTED.

Sketches by Boston American Staff Artist from Cabled Description.

*Miles Says Awful Defeat
Means Peace in Near Future*
BY LIEUT.-GEN. NELSON A. MILES.

The terrible naval defeat the Russians have suffered ought to mean a speedy termination of the war. I think the end is near. That was the greatest sea fight in the history of the world. In some respects it was truly remarkable. It seems unaccountable that the Russians were so badly worsted. It seems unaccountable that they were not able to destroy one single vessel of the Japanese fleet of any size. What were the Russians' big, heavily armored cruisers and the big coast defence ships doing with their rapid fire guns? The Russians were whipped by the little torpedo boats, it appears.

In the Spanish-American war the torpedo boats of Spain were of no use. They were sunk by the little Gloucester with no trouble. Russia now has a difficult military problem to solve. With the army beaten and the ships and men of the navy gone Russia is facing the crisis of her existence.—Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, in statement to-day to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

TOKYO, May 31.—A warrant officer of the Russian repair ship Kamchatka, who was on the ship at Nagasaki, said:

"Our fleet entered the Straits of Korea numbering thirty-six vessels. The Kamchatka received several shots and was partly disabled.

"The ship was struck a vital part, and sixty men entered boats. When they were nearly clear a great explosion occurred and the ship sank. The captain and several officers were killed during the battle. The survivors were picked up and dumped overboard. Three other officers were killed."

"We could see our battleships to the northwest enveloped by the Japanese. Several of our ships were seen to be disabled. Of the thirty-six vessels that entered the straits only two have been reported safe."

LONDON, May 31.—The correspondent of the Evening Standard at Shanghai wires that the cruiser squadron of the Japanese fleet under the command of Admiral Kamimura is leaving Formosa for the mouth of the Yangtze River. The Russian cruiser Amurets is reported to be lying in the Yangtze, and it is supposed that the purpose of the Japanese cruisers is sailing for that point in to capture or sink the Russian vessel.

RUSSIAN LIFELINE INTO DEATH TRAP PREPARED FOR TOGO THEN SMASHED BY AWFUL ATTACK OF JAP WARSHIPS AND TORPEDO BOATS

OZAR'S SHIPS STOCKED BY DESTROYERS

Special Cable to Boston American. LONDON, May 31.—The tale of Russia's disaster is now complete. Out of the great fleet that went into battle on Saturday, May 27, all but four have been captured or sunk by the Japanese.

The Admiral of the fleet, Rozhkovsky, is a prisoner and desperately wounded. Admiral Vokosin and Admiral Nebogatov also surrendered according to official Tokyo dispatches.

Two vessels out of all the gallant armada that was headed for Vladivostok have escaped that port.

Such a catalogue of overwhelming loss seems past precedent and is all terribly true.

The Japanese report of the capture of Rozhkovsky is direct and exact, but the Petersburg Herald says that the Admiral has been killed.

The Admiralty authorities there point out that the morning report is based on the correspondence in the Russian capital, in which it is asserted that Rozhkovsky has been killed.

TYPE OF DEADLY SUBMARINE USED BY JAPANESE IN BATTLE OF KOREA STRAITS

This picture shows a submarine torpedo under the protection of battleships, and represents a type of the new death-dealing engines of war believed to have been used by the Japanese in the recent battle between Tokyo and Vladivostok in the Straits of Korea.

RUSSIAN SURVIVORS' STORY OF COMBAT

ST. PETERSBURG, May 31.—A London report giving an account in detail of the battle taken by the Russian Admiral and the torpedo boat destroyer (Grozny) in the night of May 27, has been received here.

The officers of the two vessels could not give a definite report as to the outcome of the great battle, however, acting under orders, they reported from the main deck on Saturday before the end came.

The officers reported that the Russian Admiral's flagship, the Mikasa, was also a target of the Russian Admiral's first firing.

THEATRES
"PRINCE OF PILSEN" AT THE TREMONT

With a number of changes in its cast and in its presentation, the successful musical comedy, "The Prince of Piffles," opened the Summer season at the Tremont Theatre this week. Nothing has been lost to the success of the piece by the introduction of changes.

The witwoman accorded the piece on its opening would indicate that the production was having its first presentation, and that each of the numbers furnished a pleasant surprise to the lay audience. Though many in the audience had evidently witnessed the performance at least once before, they were as ready to laugh and to laugh heartily, as those who witnessed the piece
